THE MEXICAN WAR.

A few days since it was said that there would be war between the republic of Mexico and Guatemala. The next day it was said that Mr. Gresham was opposed to the war and had offered the friendly mediation of the United States and that offer had induced the Mexican government to take a less lurid view of the situation. Meantime, however, Guatemala went ahead pushing her preparations and the consequence is that she has been able to combine San Salvador, Costa Rica and several other of the Central American republics, and is now ready to try conclusions with Mexico. General Diaz is not only a soldier but a patriot of the highest rank. For many years it has been the accepted policy of Mexico to acquire territory in Central America, but until this boundary question there has been not the slightest pretext for an attack. Now, however, the excuse is furnished and it is an excellent one. It is not likely, therefore, that our plucky neighbor will forego the tempting opportunity to promptly begin a war which can have but one ending; the full gratification of her ambition to acquire territory in Central America. The unanimity of the Central American states on the question of a war with Mexico puts the pretext upon the one plane where Mexico is most desirous that it should be placed. It furnishes her the coveted opportunity to subjugate the Central American provinces one and all and to extend the authority of the Central Mexican republic over the whole region. The question we feel interested in, is how will such an acquisition affect the United States?

Even if Mexico acquired every foot of Central America she would still be far too weak to ever hope to cope with this country on the field successfully. Her aim would be to dignify the Mexican republic by an increased territory, and to enrich it enormously by acquiring an immense acreage of the richest soil on earth. At best the Central American republics have been and are today turbulent, quarrelsome neighbors of Mexico. They resemble nothing so much as a covey of bantam roosters. Just as eager to do battle as that diminutive bird, and comparatively weakly and relatively with no more fighting power. What a century under the strong and enlightened Mexican government would do for them it would be hard to say. It is safe, however, to conclude that there would be no retrogression, but just how much improvement would occur in a century, we cannot say. If this conquest and annexation should occur a peaceful and cordial alliance between Mexico and the United States would make the two republics so strong that the whole policy of Europe with regard to this continent would have to be reconstructed. This power would be not alone military, commercially and financially they could and unquestionably would insist upon a very decided change in the trade customs now prevailing between Europe and either or both republics.

Both nations are large producers of silver and are wedded to the silver dollar in sentiment far stronger than any other which prevails. It is very nearly certain that such an annexation would so stiffen Uncle Sam's vertebrae that he would immediately pass an act fully restoring silver to all of its ancient and time-respected functions as a money the full weight with gold. Under one flag, under one policy, nothing financial or commercial could withstand them, and there are but few military combinations formed of which they need be in the least afraid. This silver suggestion just now should have a peculiar interest for our government, for the west and south as well. It will pay people to cipher on the probabilities a little, and but little reflection would be necessary ere a hundred thousand brave men would be ready to spring over the border to assist our good neighbor in bringing about some of the good effects which lie within easy reach of Mexico and the United States acting as friendly allies. If Mr. Cleveland will abandon his gold bug heresies and go in for such a consummation as this, he may yet be able to recoup and regain his lost prestige as a statesman and a patriot. This great nation of sixty millions of people would at once be lifted from the slough of despond, and a new prosperity on a solid and enduring basis be achieved.

THE PRINCESS OF WALES. On Den 1 last, the Princess of Wales celebrated her fiftieth birthday. Half a century seems a formidable number of years for a beautiful woman to have to acknowledge to, and in the case of the princess the fact seems incredible. She is really a wonder, for she has had many illnesses and passed through many terrible troubles, all of which are supposed to tell upon good looks.

He says, then the recommendation to issue the bonds is astounding and indicates that somebody is under obligations to deliver goods which they find it impossible to so deliver. If the public suspicions are nearly correct, it will be very bad.

Mr. Vest's earnest declaration to the effect that he cannot follow the head of his party in his efforts to establish the gold standard, is, all things considered, the most manly and commendable sentiment which has been spoken in this land for many years. It had fallen from the senator's lips two years since the remonetization of silver would not seem so far off. We have all followed President Cleveland or kept silence before him too long. He should now hear some stern facts uttered in vigorous and plain Anglo Saxon words. Mr. Vest is the man who can group and utter them better than all others among the representatives of the people on the floor of the senate or near the government.

It is now said that the Central American league against Mexico is a fact accomplished. If that is so, then the war in that region is inevitable, and Mexico will have the chance she has for so long coveted, that of annexing the Central American republics to her own territory. If she successfully accomplishes that Mexico, will become a good second class power. It is a prize worth struggling for, and Diaz is the very man to accomplish it, if it is at all practical.

The Herald says the count in the Third precinct is not over, but here's what it does say: Our esteemed cotemporary at Provo is mistaken in saying the "count in the Third precinct is not over." The board made a blunder. It canvassed only a part of the returns and of the votes. It is no count and of very little account. There is no such thing in the law as a poll canvass. The Third precinct canvass must be made and all that is left to the result to "any candidate" must be investigated.

The Herald of Jan. 31 gives our wayward friend Dave Day a benefit. Dave is rapidly growing into importance. But the southern Utes are still in Utah against the authority both of the United States and the territory of Utah. If Dave has any regard for the temporal good of his pets he ought to see to their removal at the earliest possible moment of time.

THE TRIBUNE TELLS THE HERALD for its unfaithfulness in criticizing the gold bond recommendation of a democratic president. Had the case been reversed we feel very certain the Tribune would have applauded a republican president. The Herald regrettably blames a policy it cannot subscribe to, and it is right.

THE RUSHING OF THE MINISTERS the other day in Salt Lake to the rescue of political purity at the ballot box, was a very touching exhibition of patriotism. But we would think more of the circumstance had the action been taken by democratic as well as republican preachers.

MR. CLEVELAND MAY LIVE to hear the last of the bond business, but we do not believe he will. That was the monumental mistake of his administration. Especially since Carlisle says there is plenty of money without the issuance of the bonds.

STRAHGE to say that when a southern combination (sugar planters) ask for a bounty, the Salt Lake Tribune favors it. So strong is the bounty habit that it is willing for the ex-rebels to enjoy it; no matter, so the government is bled.

WARDE AND JAMES' engagement in Salt Lake was an immense dramatic event. The conclusion of the engagement was celebrated by an Elk supper at which Warde's fine speaking came handy.

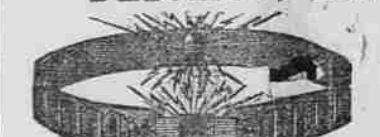

THAT WAS A dreadful disaster, the loss of the Elbe. The heart grows sick at the loss of life attending the accident.

KNIGHTS OF THE MACCABEES. The State Commander writes us from Lincoln, Neb., as follows: "After trying other medicines for what seemed to be a very obstinate cough in our two children, we tried Dr. King's New Discovery and at the end of two days the cough entirely left them. We will not be without it hereafter as our experience proves that it cures where all other remedies fail."—Signed F. W. Stevens, State Com., Why not give this great medicine a trial, as it is guaranteed and trial bottles are free at Smoot Drug Co. Regular size 50c. and $1.00.

The Ladies Rule.

Duplicate what is the rage among the ladies of Buffalo, and The Commercial of that city says that whilst invitations now take this form: "Duplicate what is the rage among the ladies of Buffalo."

Husbands may be ordered at 11." Which makes the cynical Rochester Express to remark: "The breezy frankness of this is delicious, and one can imagine Buffalo husbands rushing about in upon a haste each evening at 11."

They meet on the doosteps of the Elbe where the symphony are held, and just together over the chimneys of their ladies, just as the coachmen used to do in the simple good old days when husbands and wives went to balls together, or played 'hearts,' each with the other for partner. But those evenings are long past. The ladies rule, and the only comfort that the doctile but freezing Buffalo husbands have now is the remembrance that in those same old days ladies sometimes fell in love with coachmen, and so may yet smile with affection upon husbands."

Admitted to the Bar.

Miss Cora A. Benson has been admitted to the Massachusetts bar. The application for her admission was made by Lawyer Hemenway. A number of well known persons attended court on this occasion, including Miss Agnes Irwin, dean of Radcliffe college. Miss Benson is a graduate of the law school of Michigan university, and has already been admitted to practice before the supreme courts of Illinois and Michigan. She speaks in the highest terms of the kindness and courtesy with which she was treated by all her fellow law students at Michigan university. The day following Miss Benson's admission, Miss Amy Acton was also admitted, with 35 other students from the Boston University law school. They all stood up together in the supreme judicial courtroom in this city and took the oaths in concert.

Mrs. Heron's Stand.

General Federation of Women's Clubs, and an influential member of the Chicago Woman's club, is strongly in favor of admitting to membership the colored woman who is knocking at its door. According to report, she has only one disability, that of race, but her proposed membership is raising a row of dimensions in the club. In taking this liberal stand, Mrs. Heron invokes the narrow minded sisters, who, last May, in Philadelphia, opposed her candidacy for the first office of the federation because she is a Roman Catholic. This, too, in the face of the most strongly defined rules of most women's clubs that religion and politics shall invariably be tabooed subjects.—New York Times.

Belva Lockwood Interviewed.

"Of course, Mrs. Lockwood, you are still interested in woman's rights?" inquired an interviewer of Belva A. Lockwood, whom he met on a train passing through Cincinnati.

"Certainly. It is only a matter of time until the women will be on the same plane with the men at the ballot box, as they are in everything else."
